Personal Profile

Having been self employed for the past 4 years, I am excited to find a new and challenging role in Tech. I have continued to hone my skill-set while self employed, picking up PHP and much of the last year doing Web Scraping and programming in Python. I have gained experience during this time and found it very rewarding to have the freedom to explore different area's of new technology. I look forward to applying my long background in tech and new skills to a new opportunity.

Personality Type

Logician (INTP-T) Introverted, Intuitive, Thinking, Prospecting
Role: Analyst Strategy: Constant Improvement

The INTP personality type is fairly rare, making up only three percent of the population. INTPs pride themselves on their inventiveness and creativity, their unique perspective and vigorous intellect. Usually known as the philosopher, the architect, or the dreamy professor, INTPs have been responsible for many scientific discoveries throughout history.

INTPs are known for their brilliant theories and unrelenting logic - in fact, they are considered the most logically precise of all the personality types. They love patterns, and spotting discrepancies between statements could almost be described as a hobby. No one is more enthusiastic and capable of spotting a problem, drilling through the endless factors and details that encompass the issue and developing a unique and viable solution than INTPs

Famous INTPs Bill Gates Ellen Page Kristen Stewart Albert Einstein Rene Descartes Blaise Pascal Isaac Newton

RAF MILDENHALL — It can be difficult to earn a prestigious Army medal for service in Iraq, but try getting one as a British civilian and see how far you get.

In a rare and hard-won tribute celebrated here last week, Maj. Gen. Paul Fletcher from the 16th Air Force pinned the fourth-highest honorary Department of the Army medal for service on four men for work in Iraq in 2004 and 2005.

British contractors David Cole, Andrew Bendy and Malcom Eatwell, along with American contractor Jeremy Moeder, all employees for Aegis Defense Services at the time of their deployment, received the Commander's Award for Civilian Service in the ceremony.

Maj. Gen. Paul Fletcher, left, from the 16th Air Force, hands a citation for a Commander's Award for Civilian Service to Jeremy Moeder, an American contractor who worked in Iraq along with British contractors, from left, Andrew Bendy, David Cole and Malcom Eatwell, who also received honors.

April 2006

DANIEL E. LONG, JR.
Major General, USA
Commanding

During the period of 21 August 2004 to 1 June 2005, Mr. Jeremy M. Moeder served as the primary Information Technology Technical Support Specialist for the Reconstruction Operations Center and Aegis Defence Services Limited, directly supporting the Projects and Contracting Office headquartered in the International Zone of Baghdad, Iraq. While serving in this fundamentally crucial position, Mr. Moeder was the pivotal performer in the design and development of the critically acclaimed Aegis Defence website which provided invaluable intelligence information to Personal Security Details and other agencies. This website allowed personnel "in the field" to quickly and easily access vitally important up-to-the-minute intelligence reporting imperative to the success of each and every mission. Mr. Moeder repeatedly proved himself the consummate professional and quintessential team player by responding quickly and efficiently to a rapidly changing and dynamic environment – never missing a beat when called upon to perform under even the most arduous conditions. Mr. Moeder's professionalism and dedication reflect great credit upon himself, Aegis Defence Services Limited, the Projects and Contracting Office, the United States Army, and the United States of America.
